

Fall of 46 BC

After appointing Sallust governor of NUMIDIA and reorganizing the provinces of Africa, Caesar in the fall of 46 BC returned to Rome. The frightened Senate, recognizing the advent of monarchy, voted him the dictatorship for 10 years, and such a triumph as Rome had never seen before. He paid each of his soldiers 5000 ATTIC DRACHMAS (3000), much more than he had promised them. He feasted the the citizens at 22,000 tables and provided a shore sea battle involving 10,000 men.

46 BC Caesar

Defeated Pompeian force
at Thapsus, Africa

Caesar rebuilt the Circus
maximus about this time

LEPIDUS

468C - 438C; 428C; 368C MARCUS AEMILIUS LEPIDUS d 138C

His son was praetor (498C) { Son of Marcus
Aemilius Lepidus

He was consul (468C) with Caesar } d 778C

He was appointed to NARBONNESE GAUL and Ulther Spain. He supported Antony, who joined him in Gaul after the defeat at MUTINA (modern Modena) in 438C. They formed the 2nd Triumvirate with Octavian. After the battle of Philippi (428C) Lepidus received the governorship of Africa, whence he returned

(36 BC) to conquer Sicily. Octavian suspected him of trying to keep Sicily for himself and deprived him of his offices, except that of pontifex maximus.

In 46BC

46BC was extremely long.

To take effect Jan 1, 45BC Caesar introduced the JULIAN Calendar

He limited distribution of free grain

He founded citizens colonies

He enlarged the Senate.

He reduced peoples debts

He revised the tax structure

He extended Roman citizenship to non-Italians

46 BC

DURANT

Caesar appointed Dictator for 10 years.
Revision of the Calendar.

SALLUST, historian

Cicero, "PRO MARCELLO"

46 BC

Caesar was appointed Dictator for 10 years.

April 46BC

CATO the younger committed suicide
Cato's inflexibility helped precipitate
the republic's downfall.

46BC

Caesar celebrated an unprecedented
quadruple triumph

46BC

VERC/NGETORIX bid

APR 6, 46 BC

Caesar defeated SCIPIO and CATO at Thapsus. A sweeping victory.

Cato unable to defend Utica, committed suicide.

46 BC

Julius Caesar restored Corinth which had been conquered and destroyed
by Romans in 146 BC